Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

3. Claims 1-2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kobayashi et al in view of Tanaka et al.

Kobayashi et al discloses a video recording/reproducing apparatus that shows substantially the same limitations recited in claims 1-2, including the feature of noise reduction means for reducing noise of a video supplied to said video recording and/or playback apparatus or noise of a video recorded already by said video recording and/or playback apparatus (See Kobayashi et al's Figure 2, components 104, and 116), the feature of the noise reduction means being a cyclic noise reducer as specified in the present claims 1-2. (See Kobayashi et al's page 1, paragraphs [0002], and [0004]).

Kobayashi fails to specifically disclose the feature of the motion detection means for executing motion detection of the video whose noise has been reduced by said noise reduction means; and interpolation processing means for performing an interpolation process for the video supplied or the video recorded already based on a result of the motion detection by said motion detection means as specified in the present claims 1-2.

Tanaka et al discloses a noise reducing apparatus which includes the features of the motion detection means for executing motion detection of the video whose noise has been reduced by said noise reduction means; and interpolation processing means for performing an interpolation process for the video supplied or the video recorded already based on a result of the motion detection by said motion detection means as specified in the present claims 1-2. (See Tanaka et al's Figure 1, and column 3, lines 1-28).

It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to modify the Kobayashi et al's video recording/reproducing apparatus wherein the noise reducing means provided thereof (See Kobayashi et al's Figure 2, components 104, and 116) would incorporate the capability of a noise reducing means having the motion detection and the interpolation means for purpose of improving the quality of the received video data in the same conventional manner as shown by Tanaka et al. The motivation is to better improve the quality of the inputted video data as suggested by Tanaka et al.
